Last weekend, hundreds of people from the Pontiac and beyond gathered at Armstrong Heritage Farm in Shawville for the town's 16th annual Country Jamboree.

Put on by the Shawville Lions Club, the event served as an opportunity for country music fans from all over the region to enjoy classic tunes from their favorite artists in a friendly atmosphere while raising money for a new elevator at the Lions Hall.

With around 200 motorhomes scattered along the grounds surrounding the stage area, people either sat in their lawn chairs in front of the stage, relaxed by their RV's or danced with their partners, while taking in the sweet sounds of country.

However, with the oven-like temperatures over the weekend, the majority of audience members set up their chairs underneath the large tents nearly 30 yards away

Showcasing nearly 20 musical acts from all across the country, including several Ottawa Valley Country Music Hall of Famers, the event offered a wide variety of talent for all attendees to enjoy from gospel to western swing and even some progressive country.

Throughout the event, 2010 Ottawa Valley Country Music Hall of Fame inductee Charlie Kitts held it down as the emcee, while local country star Phil Denault managed the sound system. All weekend long, volunteers served hot dogs, hamburgers and non-alcoholic beverages from the barbecue station to keep everyone from going too hungry or dehydrated.

Incoming interruption to obstetrics

Expectant mothers in the area will be transferred to Gatineau or Pembroke to give birth

CALEB NICKERSON

SHAWVILLE July 24, 2019

The Pontiac Community Hospital (PCH) will face a month-long interruption to obstetrics services starting at the end of this week unless drastic action is taken by local authorities.

Interruptions to obstetrics have occurred earlier in the year, but this occasion will be different, according to the PCH's manager of Short Term Care and General Care, Natalie Romain.

"We have a shortage of nurses," she said. "It's not just here, it's everywhere."

According to Romain, several factors led up to this breach in services, which, at the time of print, is scheduled to begin on Friday July 25 at 4 p.m. and last at least a month.

In recent months, four nurses trained in obstetrics have gone on maternity leave and aren't scheduled back for another year, while another four have transferred to other departments (two to dialysis and two to emergency). Along with staff injuries or people moving away, the situation became more and more critical as months went by.

She said that since the remaining eight RNs work in 12 hour shifts, so many nurses rack up a considerable amount of overtime if anyone is sick or missing from the alternate shift. Romain said that she's done everything she could to keep the obstetrics unit open, but with summer holidays it came to a head, and they were forced to temporarily halt

"I want people to get the straight answer," she said. "They're upset, I feel for them, but they need to understand there is a shortage of nurses. They can't work 24 hours a day, seven days a week. They need their holidays too."

Expectant mothers in the region will have to head to the hospital in Gatineau or Pembroke, depending on their loca-

Claudee Galipeau is an expectant mother from Fort Coulonge. Though her baby isn't due until mid-September, she said the possibility of travelling an additional hour to Gatineau was not at all what she had envisioned.

"It's super stressful," she said. "I get that we're not the only region that has had interruptions of services in obstetrics ... That means that there's an overall problem with our retention and recruitment efforts across the board, province wide."

Galipeau said that her first child was born at PCH and she hoped to do the same the second time around.

"I don't want to deliver in Gatineau," she said. "My first experience in Shawville was wonderful. The staff was wonderful, you feel at home.

Romain said the Centre intégré de santé et des services sociaux de l'Outaouais (CISSSO) has been made aware of the staffing issues, but the situation continued to fester.

"They were aware, this is not some-months ago.' To make matters worse, this August is particularly busy for births, with Romain counting approximately 18, when they typically average around 10. She said that in the case of an imminent birth, where there is no time for an hour-plus trip to the city, PCH staff will make the delivery short-handed, but it's not an optimal situation by any means. "If a lady wakes up and knows [she's] not going to make it to Gatineau, they know to present themselves up here,' she said. "They will deliver her here because we don't have a choice ... It's fine and dandy if the delivery goes fine, [but] when a woman delivers quickly, there's all sorts of consequences."

Once the birth is complete, the mother and child will be transferred to

"My own view of things is that a couple of days, as we experienced earlier in the [year] was already too much, now we're talking about a potential break in services for about a month. That's simply not acceptable," he said.

Community leaders speak out on revised ZIS map

PONTIAC July 16, 2019

On July 16, the Quebec government unveiled its revised map for the special with a number of construction regulations to put a hold on projects in flood zones until further notice.

After releasing a map largely deemed as exaggerated and inaccurate by community leaders all over the region earlier this month, the newest version of the ZIS was modified to represent a more accurate depiction of the territory affected by the 2017 and 2019 floods.

With the new delimitations, the government is banning construction and renovation of buildings destroyed by a flood in the ZIS, unless they meet the criteria for exception.

The exception allows for damage assessment on properties where water had reached the ground floor, the foundations need to be replaced or where stabilization work is needed.

Victims from the 2019 floods may be eligible to register for the Ministry of Security's Public Compensation and Assistance Program for Real and Imminent Disasters, which can offer up to $200,000 or 90 per cent of a home's value in financial Residents whose property is evaluated as being less than 50 per cent destroyed, are invited to get in touch with their municipalities to get their situation examined.

A ZIS is a legal power exercised by the government to press the pause button on any construction in certain areas affected by natural disasters until they come up with an action plan on how to deal with them.

Not new to the province, they'd been put in effect on three occasions prior to this one. The first time was in Saguenay, the second in St-Jean-sur-Richelieu and the

The ZIS consist of all properties within the 0-20vear watermark and all And they're very accurate, areas hit by the heavy floods far more accurate than the intervention zone (ZIS) along of last spring and of two years past.

However, many local residents and community leaders believe that it still doesn't represent the territory accurately.

According to Municipality of Pontiac Mayor Joanne Labadie, the biggest difference between this year's ZIS compared to the one from two years prior is that it represents a much larger portion of the territory, which is likely because the 2019 floods were more severe than in 2017 and because they both occurred in such a short timeframe.

Labadie noted that each municipality is very different in its landscape and that the map still doesn't fairly reflect the reality of the flood zones.

"What this map failed to do was to take into account our topography, specifically elevation," she said. "We have areas in our municipality that have not seen water really understand the geogsince the Ice Age. But, they're in the map."

Since the unveiling of the initial ZIS map around a month ago, municipal staff have been hard at work trying to remove certain properties and areas from the flood zone and have had some successes in doing so.

However, many more areas need to be taken off the map, including sections of Quyon, avenue des Plages parts of chemin Cedarvale among others, Labadie said.

According to Labadie, the Municipality is working to provide the government with more accurate mapping that takes into account both elevation and areas actually ZIS map.' Throughout the municipality, approximately 180 properties sit outside of the 100-year floodplain, were never flooded but are included in the ZIS.

The municipality has received over 70 e-mails so far regarding citizens living outside the floodplain wanting to be removed from the map and are continuing to get more, Labadie said.

After the floods of 2017, the municipality signed off on the demolition of 29 homes affected. This year, many more will be demolished, Labadie said.

Labadie noted that the government didn't do the necessary consulting with municipalities to represent the flood zones fairly.

"Basically, they just went by satellite images," she als." said. "They did it too quickly. They should have consulted the municipalities first who raphy of the region better than some bureaucrats in Quebec City."

In Alumettes Island, the town's sole municipal inspector has been overwhelmed with residents demanding to be removed from the ZIS, according to Mayor Winston Sunstrum.

"We've been inundated with calls and people stopping in and wanting immediate responses and so on," he said. "It's been really crazy."

So far, an undetermined large number of properties in the town are affected in some way by the ZIS, Sunstrum said.

Whether it's people not in the flood zone worried that they are, those in the flood reached by water and hope zone wanting to be taken that it will be put into effect. out, or residents in the flood zone who are worried about their property's value, plenty technology to be able to do of question are being asked without many

> According to Sunstrum, the municipality has asked for an independent review of the floodplain and of dams in the province to get answers on how to alleviate flooding in the region going forward.

"People don't have a lot of is managed," he said. "I think an independent review would maybe restore some confidence in the system. At some point, we need to find out exactly what happened and we need to plan for the future.'

"Fewer people are going to have to share the tax burin an increase for individu-

But the most imminent issue for the municipality remains solving the problems of each individual affected by the ZIS in a negative way, Sunstrum said.

Pontiac MNA André Fortin didn't hold back when giving his thoughts on the new delimitations during a phone interview with The Equity on July 22.

"The map is erroneous," he said. "The map was made in a rush by the government of the Coalition Avenir du Quebec."

The government held a consultation in Campbell's Bay on July 4. locals to give their thoughts on the ZIS, how it affects them and what changes they'd like to see.

However, Fortin has dubbed the government's response as "incompetent" and quite disappointing and ignorant towards the difficulties affected residents are left to face.

"They promised to adjust the map, that their errors

"That everyone who wasn't then send those recommenflooded either in 2017 or dations to Quebec - all that 2019 would be removed from this map and that hasn't been the case."

"In all evidence, the government hasn't been able to adjust the map correctly following the consultation," he added. "It's a little insensitive towards the reality lived confidence in how the river by all these people to say that people have the possibility of expressing themselves. The government didn't listen to everyone express themselves."

According to Fortin, removing all residences that weren't physically affected or damaged by the floods that find themselves in the ZIS is imperative.

For Fortin, the government assigning the duty of consulting residents affected rural municipalities instead of managing it themselves is an unrealistic expectation.

"What the government indicated is that it's putting the burden on the municipalities," he said. "Instead of taking care of their own responsibilities."

As most municipal offices in the Pontiac only have a single part-time employee The session was intended for taking care of business, he noted that many municipalities in the region lack the necessary staff to deal with every situation with the be able to submit their conrespect and diligence they require, on top of the numerous issues they had already been dealing with.

> "They have to deal with taking in the residents in a period of a few weeks" he said

"In certain places where they have resources like Gatineau, it can always work out," he added. "But in our small municipalities it's a lot to ask to municipalities that already faced the difficulties of flooding."

With hundreds of residents in the lurch not knowing how to move forward with construction on their properties, Fortin urged the importance of the government doing everything it can vidual affected by the ZIS.

"Right up until the very that the work gets done correctly," he said. "We're talking about life investments That's why it's important that the government pays attention to every detail instead of doing things too quickly like they did."

The ZIS delimitation could potentially have substantially negative effects on the local population, one being that it will prevent growth in population and infrastructure in various parts of the region that have never been hit by a single drop of river water.

But most importantly for residents, it's going to take a serious toll on the value of many homes in the Pontiac, Fortin said.

"A lot of people are worried and with reason," he said. "They expect the government to correct their mistake."

To report any inaccuracies to the new flood map, people are asked to contact their municipalities, who will cerns to the Ministry of Public Security up until August 19.

Valley Heritage Radio had their own tent set up on site during the event.

On Saturday afternoon, the event's main organizer Edward Walsh along with Shawville Mayor Sandra Murray, Mayor of Clarendon John Armstrong and MRC Pontiac Warden Jane Toller gave brief speeches, thanking everyone who contributed to the event and the importance of the festival to the town.

Help wanted

Last week it was discovered that the Pontiac Community Hospital (PCH) would likely experience an interruption to their obstetrical services at the end of this week, lasting approximately a month. The reason is that there just aren't enough nurses available to adequately staff the department.

According to multiple sources, overtime has increased in the past months as the staff at PCH valiantly tried to make do with the resources available to them. Burning out front-line staff with an excessive workload isn't a viable route forward, and it's miraculous that they've put up with everything so far.

We need more workers, plain and simple. People in the Pontiac deserve health care in their communities, and obstetrics is one of the pillars of rural medicine. A break in the obstetrics services is a canary in the coal mine, signalling more interruptions are coming down the road if no drastic action is taken.

So what's being done?

Yes, it is true that there's a staffing shortage across the province. This is not an issue that's exclusive to Pontiac or the Outaouais.

But if that's the case, what concrete efforts have been made to bring more workers to the province?

After speaking with several health care professionals, there are a multitude of hurdles facing even Pontiac residents who want to work in the local health system. Language is one, as those wanting to work in the region have to be proficient in both French and English. How likely is it that this government will loosen their rules, after the language hall-monitors tore down all the English words outside the hospital in Lachute? Let's call it, uh, doubtful.

Will the province raise wages so that border regions like this one can compete with Ontario? Highly improbable.

The CAQ have touted their new immigration plan, Bill 9, which they rammed through the legislature at four in the morning back in June. While talking up the new, expedited process that they claim will reduce wait times for skilled workers applying to live in Quebec, they haven't been as vocal about the new language and values tests they have implemented.

Newcomers will now need to demonstrate proficiency in French after three years, as well as pass a test showing their values align with the province's, whatever that's supposed to mean.

It remains to be seen what affect this law will have on those seeking work in Quebec by itself, but more work is still necessary.

Contact the Health Minister, as well as Pontiac's MNA, and let them know that local health care services are vital to this region.

Long car drives

When I wrote about this two years ago, my hopes were grim. I thought for sure we'd never be able to do a long road trip with our crew - I've always dreamed of going down East as a family. But I have to say in the last little bit our children (aged four, six and eight) have gotten progressively better in the car. For all you mommas out there with little ones, there is hope.

Two years later, I have a few more ideas how to keep children busy in the car on long trips thanks to other parents out there sharing some great ideas. Here are some ideas for kids ranging in ages from babies to school-aged children. Hopefully some will helpful to you on your next adventure

Babies and toddlers

Ideally leaving after they've been fed and changed and are ready for sleep will give you a sleeping baby for a part of your long drive. Other ideas to keep baby entertained include hand toys. Take out toys that are new to them, toys that make noise (rattles, play phones, hand held musical instruments) and change it up often. In between toys you can give them something to chew on. Babies who have teeth and are teething can literally chew on a washed, peeled full carrot or a cucumber or any other large vegetable that they can hold and only break off tiny bits of. This of course needs to be monitored by an adult at all times in case they do get a large piece of vegetable, so best when travelling with two parents or with a grandparent. You can also make a simple I Spy Bottle for them. (To make one of these simply empty the contents of a plastic water bottle out, remove the label and fill the bottle three quarters of the way filled with sand or rice. Add small objects that they can spot. Examples include: pompoms, googly eyes, confetti, glitter, little poly pocket people etc.) The other thing to pack is a large supply of books. Touchy feely books, musical books, plastic books they can chew on and give them to your child one at a time. Lastly, all children need breaks out of the car. Stop frequently for exercise and snacks.

Gratified

I have just read your extensive coverage of the recent inaugural Pontiac Quad Club Rally and was extremely gratified to see in both word and picture that the trail system currently in place for the use of ATV users in the Pontiac is more than adequate to meet their needs. It would seem redundant then for the MRC to continue with their plan to remove the Campbell's Bay to Waltham section of the PPJ Trail from the Route Verte.

As a regular user of the PPJ I hope those looking into allowing ATVs on the PPJ will follow the lead of the last committee and disband before it's too

Hosted by the Norway Bay Municipal Association (NBMA), the event served as a family-friendly party for the community where paddlers were invited to show off their skills to the community at large by racing against their friends and peers, according to the event's main organizer Peter Niedre.

"It brings the kids and the parents out," he said. "This is about having a lot of fun in the community together. And it's the opportunity for the kids to kind of show off their skills too.

With four plastic dummies set up at various points at around 100 metres from the water, each heat of participants lined up for take-off at the shoreline before dashing loops around the dummies and eventually making their way back to the starting point.

Each heat was divided by gender and age group ranging from seven and eight years old to the open category of

Upon arriving at the finish line, each participant was feasting on a delicious hot dog.

Over at the barbecue volunteers station, doled out hundreds of hot dogs while attendees served themselves freely from the large water and lemonade jugs set-up on the tables underneath the tent. Throughout event, loud pop music blared from the sound system livening the atmosphere as parents cheered on the kids participating in the highly contested races.

While no scores were kept and no silverware was won, it was clear that everyone was hungry to win as the races proved to be quite competitive. With no shortage of bumping, capsizing and of course a series of neck-to-neck finishes, the event drew plenty of excitement from the crowd in attendance. A long-time tradition in the village dating back to the 1970s, Niedre believes the event is a great opportunity to expose the world of kayak racing to the community at large and hopefully bringing it back to its heyday. 'Racing can be really big if we want it to be," he said. "We're really trying to build with kids from Shawville or coming down from Bristol or Quyon. We want those kids coming and row the paddles.' For Niedre, the most rewarding aspect about putting on the event every year is seeing the happiness it brings to the youth in the community. "The kids are having fun," he said. "They're smiling and for me that's number one. And they want to come back next year. So, goal accomplished if they're having handed a participation ribbon for their efforts before—fun and say I want to come back to the regatta next

One thing we do all the time that's super easy is listen to books on CD. We have built our collection through the Scholastic Flyers. You may also be able to find some at yard sales or online. To keep them organized we keep the books in a magazine holder between car seats at the back and the CD's stay in the front. We also have a collection of music kept in the up. car, books (eye spy books are awesome for car rides), an etch-a-sketch, and we've added pencils and notepads to our collec-

We packed letter magnets and Playdough with ours. The baking sheet was a perfect table for their Playdough. I've also seen people pack empty wipe containers filled with Lego pieces. If you glue down a Lego plate to the inner lid, they are able to actually construct while in the car. If your children are old enough, they could also play games like car Bingo. You can search many different types of car Bingo online. Add to this the license plate game, where everyone in the car has to try and spot different province/state license plates. The ABC game. This is our favourite car game, you have to point out each letter in order on signs and billboards. It keeps everyone to enjoy.

happily looking out the window and occupied for a bit.

Of course, snacks are another great distraction that parents can pack for their kids. Pack their favourites and try to keep the list mess free. Choose crackers, trail mix, fruit, veggies and stay away from apple sauce and yogurt (don't forget to bring along a small bag for the garbage.) A favourite idea I've read is to buy a few new small toys and wrap them

If you're going on an extended trip you can give your children a new toy to unwrap and play with every couple of hours. This can certainly keep their interests piqued! I know not everyone can read in the car but recently we read through two novels on our car ride. Talk about happy kids, it kept all of us entertained actually.

Don't forget to talk to your children throughout the trip. Point out new landmarks, little things that they may not notice on their own or favourite scenes you look for on your drive. All of this helps stimulate their interests and builds vocabulary at the same time.

When you're out of things to say though the Internet is our friend. You can find many amazing ideas on how to keep your children occupied on long car rides. What I've provided you with is simply a small snapshot.

Bottle fed lambs

My friend owns a few sheep and this spring one ewe decided to reject her twins. To keep them alive they had to be bottle fed. Feeding was four times a day then down to three. When she was discussing how these little lambs did not seem to know how to eat grain or hay her neighbour suggested she cut back on the milk. Sure enough when she did they began to eat more of the solid food.

In our faith walk we can do the same. God's word says we are to feed on the milk of the word but like anything else if we never get into studying as a steady diet we will stay stunted in our walk. When we eat the solid food of God's word regularly we will get to know God and learn how to please Him. That will cause growth and we will face every trial with endurance!

Group of girl guides from British Columbia grace the Pontiac

On July 19, a group of girl guides with the 5th Crown Pathfinders from North Vancouver British Columbia, were at the home of local residents Scott and Susanne Gardiner in Campbell's Bay after receiving the Canada Card, an award the youngsters had been working towards for the last three years. In addition, they received a Citizenship award for service in their community. Since arriving in the region, the girls have toured Ottawa and Gatineau and have practiced survival skills, including making a fire, and will be making two hand tied quilts, which will be donated. DEATH

Labine, Éric -Of Clarendon, Quebec Éric was born in Shawville, Quebec on July 1, 1993 and passed away on Tuesday, July 15, 2019 at the young age of 26 years old. Survived by his companion and better half Tianna Narlock. Loving son of Yvon Labine and Diane Renaud. Éric will be always be loved by his sisters Cindya (Nick Hodgins) and Sophie. He was a cherished uncle to Katelyn and Madison Hodgins. Eric will always be in the hearts of his extended family, friends and community. He was a proud farm owner since 2014 and worked as a farm labour for CB Farms and many others since he could reach the pedals. The family wishes to extend their gratitude to everyone who came together in this difficult time and to the Sûreté du Québec for all their efforts. Friends called at Hayes Funeral Home, 134 Centre Street, Shawville, Quebec from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Tuesday, July 23, 2019. Funeral Service was conducted in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Shawville, Quebec on Tuesday, July 23 at 2 p.m. Interment Austin

Schwartz, Therese Olivina (nee Lafleur)

Èebruary 3, 1927 couple. Heat, storage locker 2019 It is with great sadness that the family of Therese Schwartz announces her passing, at the Long Term Care Facility (CISSS) in Shawville, Quebec at the age of 92. Beloved wife of the late Wilbert Schwartz (1995). Loving mother of Della Lecompte (Jean), Delta Tremblay (Claude), Carol Asselin (Philippe) and Willard (Deb Ross). Lovingly remembered by 8 grandchildren; Tracy, Jason, Stephane, Justin, Melissa (Mark Young), Lisa, Pierre and Hilary and 7 greatgrandchildren; Ophelie, Steven, Cedric, Loic, Jasmin, Alexi and Madison. Predeceased by her parents Emmanuel Lafleur and Oliva Gravelle, 8 sisters and 5 brothers. Survived by two sisters-in-law; Viola Schwartz (late Clarence) and Essie Schwartz (late Ernest Jr.). Also remembered by many nieces, nephews and cousins. Theresa had an unwavering faith in God and was a member of the St. Charles Borromeo Church choir in Otter Lake, Quebec. Over the years she assisted with many Church activities including numerous fundraising events. Gardening, music and quilting were her passions. Funeral mass of Christian Burial was celebrated in St. Charles Borromeo Church, Otter Lake, Quebec on Friday, July 19, 2019 at 2 p.m. Interment in the Parish Cemetery, Otter Lake. DEATH

Laliberté, Helen (née Quinn) 1935-2019 At 12:10 pm on July 19, 2019, following a sudden and very brief illness, it is with great sadness that we announce the passing of Helen Laliberté (née Quinn), more affectionately known as "Bobby" to all who knew and loved her. She quietly passed at the Shawville Community Hospital surrounded by family members. Born in 1935 into an Irish family in Perkins, Quebec, Helen was one of five children to Bennett and Mary Quinn (née Murphy). Pre-deceased by her brothers Dave and Ernie and surviving family, her sister Shirley and brother Steve. Also leaving behind her sisters-in-law, June Quinn and Lorna Quinn. Helen was a loving and devoted wife to Fernand Laliberté for 60 wonderful years and mother to children, David (Michelle), Dennis (Katherine) and Linda (Steve). She raised her three children with care and compassion and taught them the values of life. Her many passions in life included teaching and serving the community but greatest amongst all was family. She truly was the glue that held us all together. Her love of children led her to a life of teaching. She dedicated many years to this passion and continually went far beyond the standard curriculum, always looking for ways to make lessons more interesting and enjoyable for her students. She had dedicated many years towards preparing young children for the Holy Sacraments which was effortless given her strong faith in the Catholic religion. She devoted a lot of her time to the church, its activities. and events. Her volunteerism in the Catholic Woman's League and Red Hat Society were held very near and dear to her heart. She leaves behind her precious grandchil-Andrea. Ryan, Christianne, Kelsey, Lilija, Heather, Vanessa, Christopher, Adam, Haleigh, David, Joshua, Damian, Phillip and her dear great-grandchildren, Avery, Jordan, Chloe and Gabriel. She will be dearly missed by all of her nieces and nephews. The family would like to thank the compassionate care givers at the Palliative Care Centre and nurses and doctors at the Pontiac Community Hospital. A very special thank you to Fr. Goring for his prayers and support throughout her final days. Thank you to the wonderful community Campbell's Bay for your generosity and support through this difficult time. Funeral Mass will be celebrated on Wednesday, July 24, 2019 in St. John the Evangelist Church, Campbell's Bay, Quebec at 1 p.m. Interment in the Parish Cemetery. A Celebration of Life, Irish Style, will follow at the Campbell's Bay R.A. Centre. In lieu of flowers, donations are welcomed to the St. John of stories and memories. IN MEMORY

Wickens - In loving memory of Judith Kathleen Wickens our dear Mom and Grandma, a great family woman who passed away on July 24,

It's now seventeen years ago since you went away, "Mom" As we turn the pages of our memory book,

We remember you after all these years, Sometimes with laughter, others with tears, The fun times, the sad times, the family times.

We cannot bring the old days

When we were all together. In the guiet of the evening, We often sit and think of you, And of the things we used to remember. A voice we shall always recall, A memory to cherish forever, Of one so dear to us all.

There's a face we shall always

You are never far from our minds We will always remember because They'll never be another "Mom"

To replace you in our hearts. Always remembered and loved by your children, Dorothy, Darwin, Kathy, Connie, Linda, Harriet, Elaine, Dianne, Carolyn, Genevieve, Hawley and Dorval and fami-

Communiqué GATINEAU Le 3 juill. 2019

La Direction de santé publique (DSPU) du Centre intégré de santé et de services sociaux (CISSS) de l'Outaouais émet un avertissement de chaleur extrême à sa population. En effet, selon les prévisions d'Environnement Changement climatique Canada, la température extérieure pourrait atteindre 31°C ou plus le jour et 18 °C ou plus la nuit pendant au moins trois jours consécutifs. La prudence est de mise pour prévenir les effets à la santé de la chaleur! En période de chaleur, il est important d'écouter les signaux d'alerte que votre corps vous envoie en cas de déshydratation. Cessez vos activités ou votre travail, buvez de l'eau et reposez vous si vous ressentez les symptômes suivants: Une soif intense;

Une fatigue inhabituelle; Des maux de tête;

Des étourdissements; De l'enflure aux mains, aux pieds et aux chevilles;

Des crampes musculaires. En absence d'intervention, l'état peut s'aggraver, pouvant aller jusqu'au coup de chaleur qui peut se reconnaître par une température du corps élevée, de la confusion, et un évanouissement.

Le coup de chaleur est une urgence médicale; il peut survenir rapidement et entraîner la mort à court terme s'il n'est pas traité. La prudence s'impose!

Composez le 811 (Info-Santé) si vous êtes inquiet ou le Centre d'appels d'urgence 911 pour toute urgence.

Qui est le plus à risque?

Tout le monde peut être atteint de problèmes de santé liés à la chaleur, mais certaines personnes sont plus à risque, comme:

Les bébés et les jeunes

enfants;

Les personnes âgées; Les personnes souffrant de maladies chroniques, de problèmes sévères de santé mentale ou de dépendance à l'alcool et aux drogues;

Les personnes effectuant un travail physique exigeant à l'extérieur;

Les personnes qui font de l'exercice intense à l'extérieur.

Si vous avez des membres de la famille, des connaissances ou des voisins âgés, en perte d'autonomie, demeurant seuls ou qui souffrent de problèmes de santé physique ou mentale, téléphonez leur ou visitez les pour avoir des nouvelles et offrez de leur
