Last weekend, hundreds of Pontiac residents convened at the Chapeau R.A. to celebrate the municipality's fourth annual Island Fest celebration

The event comprised of a community party filled with numerous fun activities for kids, competitions and delicious food and drink for all.

Festivities kicked off on Friday evening with an eventful lineup of activities, including the chili cook-off, ball games and live music, lasting until the late hours of the night.

A group of volunteers worked the bar, serving refreshments all night long; others cooked up burgers and poutines inside of the canteen on site.

At the ball park, an action-packed double-header took place featuring an old timer's game followed by a competitive matchup between the Quyon Flyers and the Micksburg Twins of the Greater Ottawa Fastball League.

On Saturday, festivities resumed in the morning, as six ball teams battled it out in a three-pitch tournament.

Plus, with even more avenues for entertainment than the first day, the event featured a long slate of activities, including the small petting zoo, a magician and even a wildlife education presentation courtesy of Little Ray's Reptiles.

On the grounds beside the arena, kids jumped around in the three huge bouncy castles on site, including one with a large grey wrecking ball that kids were able to swing towards one another. Many had a blast doing it all day.

Early in the afternoon, folks participated in the annual rubber duck race, organized by the Chapeau Lions. At the start of the competition, contestants dropped their respective rubber ducks off the bridge with hopes of being the fastest to the finish line.

At the town's docks, a crowd of people waited anxiously alongside the finish line made up of a yellow string attached from the dock all the way to the opposing side of the waterway.

A number of local musicians hit the stage in the middle of the park, performing in front of crowds seated underneath a large tent.

The celebration concluded with a performance from a local blues band, The Groove Revival, as folks enjoyed the party atmosphere with great friends and cold beverages.

According to the municipality of Allumettes Island's assistant director, Sarah Adam, the event is about bringing people together and promoting community involvement.

For Adam, the festival is a very significant party for the town as it gives locals a place to congregate while supporting the community at the same time.

"It brings all our local organizations together," she said. "We all work together to plan this event. We all try to do a bit of fundraising to support each and every group. And it brings out the community. We get out, we have fresh air, we have some fun. live music."

"So here we are August and they're still working on some details. What we're hoping to obtain from them is one tangible objective which is a microsite. A micro-site would be a place on our website, like a go-to place for economic development and we needed their expertise to create that."

4 -H Club hosts annual judging competition

On Aug. 21, MRC Pontiac's council of mayors met at the Elsie Gibbons Room in Campbell's Bay for their monthly meeting, after taking their holiday in July.

During the meeting of the non-organized territories (TNO), the council heard a presentation from an association of residents from Coulton. Bertrand and Wright Lakes, who requested funding to fix their access road. The request was referred to the MRC's Territory Director Regent Dugas.

Council approved funding to prepare land behind the MRC offices for the construction of a new garage for equipment used in the TNOs, as well as additional parking spaces.

A new addition to the regular MRC council session was the addition of an official declaration at the opening of the meeting that attendees could speak in either English or French, and be addressed in that language as well.

Presentations and public questions

The first presentation of the evening was by Kathryn Dupuis of Mansfield, who voiced her concerns with the committee studying the possibility of allowing ATVs onto a portion of the PPJ cycling trail. As someone with property that borders on the trail, she said allowing motorized vehicles would be a public safety hazard.

Lynne Lavery of the Green PPJ Verte Committe gave a report on the group's activities, such as organizing weekly cycling trips on different sections of the trail. She also handed out copies of the new PPJ business directory, and spoke about the use that the trail is getting from non-motorized traffic.

John Petty had the council enthralled with his presentation in advance of Pontiac's 37th annual Terry Fox Run (Sept. 15 at Pontiac High School), and even managed to get a $250 spontaneous donation from the council. He implored the mayors to put together a team and encourage people to participate, emphasizing that this is an event for all Pontiac residents.

In the public question period, there were several questions from citizens concerned about the mayor's multi-use committee, and the effect that motorized vehicles would have on the cycling trail. Mayors Gaston Allard (Fort Coulonge) and Maurice Beauregard (Campbell's Bay), explained that the council has a mandate to only study the issue and deliver their findings to their fellow council members. They refuted the claim that the committee is 'biased', emphasizing that they will make recommendations based only on the facts that they uncover.

The committee, made up of Mayors Allard, Beauregard, Sandra Murray (Shawville), Gilles Dionne (Mansfield et Pontefract) and David Rochon (Waltham), was formed at the council's last meeting in June, and has yet to meet. Beauregard stressed that the public would

Some also questioned whether enough was being done to advertise and promote the trail. MRC Economic Development Director Danielle Newman went over the various ways they market the trail, from online maps to appearing at tourism and cycling shows.

Regent Dugas laid out the 2019-2020 budget for the Sustainable Forestry Managment Program (PADF), with $50,160 allocated for forest management on TPI (public) land, $51,897 for a strategy to use wood resources and implement structuring projects as well as $25,000 for the Office des Producteurs de Bois du Pontiac to promote forest management on private land. It was resolved unanimously.

Grants and funding

Newman introduced an amendment for Territory Development Fund (FDT) projects from this year, which would give recipients who received partial funding some additional flexibility to modify the scope of their projects, due to the extensive flooding in the region. Beauregard disagreed, noting that applicants affected by the 2017 flooding did not receive such accommodation.

He and Murray were the only mayors opposed to the motion.

Stéphane Labine of the Caisse Populaire was approved to be added to the FDT analysis committee, and Warden Jane Toller stepped down from the committee and was replaced by Sheenboro Mayor Doris Ranger. Nicole Thompson, owner of Thompson Depanneur in Portage du Fort was approved to sit on the MRC's investment committee.

Council approved Newman's grant submission for the regional investment fund (FARR), which was divided into three phases. Phase one is the creation of a territory marketing strategy, while phase two is investor attraction and would involve the hiring of a welcoming agent.

Speaking after the meeting, Toller was enthusiastic about the idea.

"This is a position that [MRC] Vallée de la Gatineau has and they're getting good results," she said. "Basically it would be to have someone in the MRC who, when people come or businesses want to invest here ... it's someone who could introduce them to where the schools are, where the services are, maybe just help introduce them to life in the Pontiac.'

Phase three was the conservation and enhancement of natural environment. Toller said that the first phase was partially carried out when the MRC hired a firm, CAI Global, to attract businesses to the region. Though some initial meetings had been made, she added that they were disappointed with the progress that had been made.

"The contract was supposed to finish in March, but we feel that they have not complet-

She said that the MRC will withhold a portion of the $49,000 in funding until the mandate is met. The majority of the money ($40,000) came from a grant from the Caisse Populaire, while the rest was covered by the MRC.

Roads, power lines and environmental assessments

The council approved to support a letter from the Municipality of Shawville to the Ministry of Transport and Pontiac MNA André Fortin to pave the section of Rte. 303 that passes through the town (rue Centre).

They also sent a request to Fortin, Hydro Quebec and the local farmers union (UPA) to get an explanation for the numerous power outages that have plagued the upper Pontiac municipalities of Chichester, Allumettes Island, Sheenboro and Waltham. They requested a sitdown meeting with representatives and the council of mayors.

Council also passed a resolution that was passed by the MRC Vallée de la Gatineau, decrying the provincial environment ministry's permit application process. Toller explained that former warden and current director of the Pontiac Sorting Centre in Litchfield approached the council and spoke about the difficulties the centre has had getting their site approved by the ministry.

Earlier this year, the sorting centre was hit with more than $40,000 in fines for the improper storage of construction waste. Toller noted that the MRC had requested a meeting with the ministry about the file and had been refused. She said that huge delays in the approval of permits and the amount of redundant information the ministry requires had hamstrung operations at the facility.

It was also announced that the Piscine Pontiac Pool project was moving forward, with an application being put in for the FARR program for funds to have detailed plans drawn up. She said that current committee president Todd Hoffman had put forth a compelling application.

'There's no amount of money stipulated, but they need the updated architectural drawings, and specs that would be needed for construction," she said, noting that the project fit two key criteria, in that it contributes to health and wellness for the region as a whole, as well as improves the interprovincial competitiveness of the area.

Toller said that she was hopeful there would be funding announcements for the region coming in the near future.

SHAWVILLE Aug. 21, 2019

On Aug. 21, around 50 members of Shawville's 4-H Club gathered at the Shawville Fairgrounds to take part in the club's annual judging competition.

As the first part of a two-legged event, the competition served as an opportunity for the club's members to prepare work on their public speaking abilities ahead of their showing at the Shawville Fair.

According to the Shawville 4-H Club's President, Bradley Dubeau, the judging competition served as a prerequisite for members wanting to partake in the showing.

The event comprised of a judging session where students earned points depending on their assessments on a variety of commodities, including livestock and produce.

After all the kids got registered, organizers divided them into small groups according to their ages. All participants were between six and twenty-five years old. Additionally, the event varied between a series of written and oral challenges.

With six stations on site, each representing a different class of product, kids had six minutes in order to verify the products in front of them and make their assessments before rotating onto the next station.

Each class featured four items and ranged from live cattle, to soybeans and even mittens.

Kids had to base their own opinions and explain which stood out most.

Once all the members went through each station, they took part in a quiz put together by the Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food (MAPAQ), which also counted in the competition.

At the end of the event, kids feasted on ice cream and cookies provided by the 4-H club, Dubeau said.

According to one of the club's leader, Jessica Cox, the competition is a great teacher of leadership skills and a good test for their public speaking abilities.

"It's just teaching them to make choices and to know what they're looking at," she said. "Because you're judging stuff all day every day, like if you're picking out a shirt, you're deciding which one is the best one. So, it's the same thing."

Fair-well to summer

Well, it's that time of year again, and the countdown to the Shawville Fair is on.

In just a few dozen hours, the gates will open and for just a moment, the fairgrounds will be the centre of the universe as far as many Pontiacers are concerned.

Our fair town will be flooded with visitors from far afield and down the road, the shops and sidewalks teeming with people. Lifted trucks and minivans will line the streets and parking spaces, filled with first-time fairgoers or old hands looking to make their mark in the arena.

One thing that sticks out is the wide range of smells that envelop you when you arrive and stick with you many years later. The, uh, rich smell of livestock mixed with burgers, and fries, diesel exhaust and sunscreen. Budweiser and cotton candy, it all melds into one big wax ball of good memories.

There really is something for everyone, from observing the majestic animals in the show ring to the clumsy beasts in the beer tent, from classic performances on the big stage to humble exhibits by local artisans.

However, Labour Day weekend is quite bittersweet for many, as it marks the end of the summer and beginning of the school year. Once the fair winds down, it comes with the sinking feeling that it's also time to put away the cervezas and Hawaiian shirts and get back to the "normal" routine. It's time to pack up the cottage and get back to the salt mines, that is, if you got to leave them at all.

It's equal parts invigorating and saddening, looking back on a summer as it fades into autumn. For every golden memory made or monster fish caught, there's usually a bad sunburn that you'd like to forget, or a good friend you just couldn't find the time to see.

While the fair is a way to bring people together and showcase this region's talent, it's also a silent, sombre reminder that all good things come to an end, and it's imperative that you smell the roses while it's

Most of us have watched closely as our favourite sports teams have gone from winning the cup to just a team in only a few years. A couple players get too old. When I looked around at the dozens of computers, electric motors, controls, sensors and switches at some farms and think that one good crack of lightning could shut down the entire operation, I would get very nervous.

Other dairy farms could continue on quite well with only a small generator to run the milking equipment if lightning or a power outage hit.

The 411 on lice

With back to school upon us, tips and tricks on avoiding head lice is on every parents to do list. Hopefully some of these tips will help us out.

Every time I see a child scratch their head, even just once, you can be sure they are getting checked. I hate lice. Any parent who's had to deal with lice will concur that they too hate them. These tiny little bugs are the absolute worst creatures to have to deal with. They're much harder to deal with then you can imagine. They cause so much trouble, work and stress. For anyone who is worried about that little note that often comes home from school, here's some of the 411 on lice.

Now I'm no expert, I've had lots of family members deal with lice and definitely remember getting lice when I was little. To try and keep these little buggers out of our house I have been doing some research.

Spiritual Growth

Kindness counts

I don't know exactly how it takes over, but when too much goes wrong in my life, I start feeling miserable. That's exactly what happened this weekend. I ended up telling my friend whom I walk with my tale of woe and as usual she was understanding and even suggested a solution. Then of all things, she came over and actually fixed the problem. I was so encouraged.

This event reminded me again of what I've known for a long time. Having a friend/being a friend, makes a difference on this hard road called life. Sometimes we will be the one in need, other times it will be someone else. The point to remember is we were made to be interdependent. And sometimes, like the Good Samaritan in the Bible, a need will arise and we will be given an opportunity to help out in someone else's life. Kindness makes a difference.

The end of the ridge

by J. D. POTIÉ

Aug. 21, Joanne Labadie and her husband Doug Briden officially announced that after nearly 15 years of growing and selling wine and lavender products to people from all over the world, their family business -Lavender Ridge Farm - will be closing for good.

Over its decade-plus of operations, the farm specialized in selling high-quality wine and lavender based products using the crops grown on their property.

Through the years, the farm has hosted countless weddings, catered luncheons for various organizations and attracted people from far and near.

Most significantly, it served as a catalyst for what is now an up-and-coming wine industry in the Pontiac.

Growing up in Quyon, Labadie's dream was to marry a farmer and to live the farming life. She wasted no time trying to make it happen.

"It was a childhood dream for me," she said. "In fact, in grade one I picked out the farmer I was going to marry."

She didn't manage to land that particular farmer, however, she jumped at the opportunity of realizing it by converting her beloved computer geek husband into one.

Before moving to their 100-acre farm in Luskville in 2005, Labadie and Briden lived together on a property located on the side of the Gatineau Hills in rural Aylmer.

Having three kids in the span of 27 months, Labadie was convinced that her calling was to be a stay-at-home mom. Despite the freedom it gave her, it didn't provide her the kind of action she wanted in her life.

Seeking a more fulfilling endeavour, she gave her dream of farming a shot.

"If I was going to be a stay-at-home mom and he went to work all day, lets buy a farm," she said.

With a background in the travelling and tourism industry, a cabinet-maker by trade and now a certified sommelier, Labadie has always had a rather multifaceted repertoire.

Launching herself into the wine industry, she felt it gave her the opportunity to make the best use of her diverse skillset.

"My mother always told me that I was a jack-of-alltrades and a master of none," she said. "But here I was, 40 years old, with a project where I could put all those talents together."

Before coming to the farm, the land had not been worked on in years, so long before dropping their first seeds into the soil in 2006, there was a lot of work to be done.

"We tore down so many buildings on this farm," she said. "There was no garden anywhere and the lawn was hay, all the way up to [waist height]."

Interestingly, entering the wine and lavender business was not a calculated decision, Labadie explained. It was about following her heart and doing something that was not being done at the time.

"At the very beginning, we came in with this passion," she said. "We wanted an alternative thing. We were both passionate about wine and the possibility of doing it. We didn't even know if you could grow grapes in this area at the time."

J.D. Potié, THE EQUITY

On Aug. 21, Joanne Labadie and her husband Doug Briden, owner's of Luskville Farm Lavender Ridge, announced that after 15 years operating the business it was officially time to call it quits. Pictured, Labadie and Briden share a glass of wine between two rows of grape vines.

Years ago, Labadie always felt frustrated with the lack of wineries in the Pontiac and surrounding areas.

Several vineyards and breweries were scattered on the other side of the Ottawa River, but were often too far apart from each other to make an enjoyable excursion out of visiting them. In the Outaouais, however, there was only one winery: The Vignoble du Clos Baillie in Aylmer. "We sort of considered them the grandfather of the local wine industry," she said.

It was all the information she needed to know: that her childhood dream was possible.

Going into a business, largely unfamiliar with what they were getting into, turned out to be a great factor to their success, Labadie explained. Without it, they might have gone in a completely different direction.

"You go into a project like this green and that's a good thing," she said. "Had I known everything I know; we both would've run the opposite way. It was really good that we were as naïve as we were.'

While her childhood dream was to own her very own farm, she wasn't satisfied with just that.

In 2011, the family officially erected the Lavender Ridge winery and boutique at the farm, where they stocked and sold their bottles of reds and whites, as well as various lavender-based soaps, creams and remedies.

Home to over 10,000 cold-weather adapted vines and 3,000 lavender crops used to make different kinds of foods, hygienic and health care products, their boutique attracted customers from all parts of the planet to buy products they couldn't find anywhere else.

Bottled in 2012, their first vintage of red, Lavigne, won the bronze medal in the "other reds" category at the 2014 Finger Lakes International Wine Competition, an annual wine showcase featuring products from 20 countries, with over 3,700 entries in multiple categories.

Although Labadie has never been a fan of wine competitions, it was still an achievement to be very proud of. More than brand exposure, the accomplishment was a way of proving to people that great wines do not only come from France, Portugal or California; that in fact, they can be cultivated in the Pontiac.

"It was really to show everybody else who was interested in a wine project in the Pontiac that this is the place," she said. "We have the terroir. You can do it. It's important to let other people know that you can make award-winning wine in the Pontiac,"

Raising her three kids, it was important for Labadie to provide them a lifestyle that would instill important life principles, like hard work and discipline.

"It was a quality of life and it was something that I felt I could be home with the kids, share those values with them and introduce them to a work ethic that could get them started in life."

Along with a staff of around six students returning every summer, their kids, Liam, Jamie and Morgan have worked on the farm for as long as they have lived there; so far, it is a lifestyle that they have cherished, Labadie said.

But in the last couple of years, changes in career trajectories and natural circumstances have made the demands of operating the farm much more challenging.

As the sole full-time farmer, with Briden already working in his respective career as an IT specialist in Ottawa, the family no longer had the time or energy to provide the 24 hour/seven day per week attention that the farm requires.

Plus, after record breaking floods sent the municipality into a state of emergency last spring, in addition to the tornados of 2018 that took a devastating toll on the farm at the beginning of their harvesting season, it has become even more challenging to make time for the business

Last year, operations continued on a part-time basis, which was still difficult, as they were unable to find enough hands to do the work consistently.

"It was a real struggle," she said.

Going into this year, Labadie and Briden knew it was likely going to be the last one for Lavender Ridge as well - a decision made before Labadie was elected mayor the the municipality.

"If I was successful in the election, we would close down the farm," she said.

Originally envisioning a 15-year plan, one of Labadie's main goals was to make the Pontiac a destination for wine enthusiasts.

Now with multiple vinicultural enterprises scattered throughout in the region, from the Little Red Wagon Winery in Clarendon to the Domaine de Pontiac Village in Quyon, it seems like the operation has grown to fruition.

"Our goal wasn't just to build a winery," she said. "We really wanted to build a wine industry."

"I'm proud to say that there's actually a budding wine industry in the Pontiac," she added.

While the closure of the business provides a bittersweet feeling for the family - marking the end of a piece of their history – it's a transition they need to make and ultimately, it's the right thing to do.

"This year was pretty clear that we weren't even going to open part-time," she said. "It was time for us to do what we said we were going to do, which was to move on."

Even though operations are officially shutting down, Briden plans to keep experimenting with wine and craft beer on a personal basis. But, after a successful run at what has an unforgettable ride, the family is planning on selling the farm at some point in the near future, Labadie said.

hair near the scalp. The easiest place to find them is at the hairline at the back of the neck or behind the ears. Nits can be confused with many other things such as dandruff, dirt particles or hair spray droplets. The way to tell the difference is that nits are firmly attached to hair, while dandruff, dirt, or other particles are not.

bedding, clothing, towels, hats and outdoor clothing, blankets and other items that have soft surfaces need to be washed in hot water and dried at a high heat temperature to kill the nits. Think about anything they had come in contact with two days prior to discovering their lice, it all needs to be washed. Items that cannot be washed can be sealed in a garbage bag (sealed) and put in the basement or garage for two weeks.

7. All household members who have been in contact with the child that has the lice should be checked and possibly treated.

8. Tip — Lice do not like tea tree oil or lavender. Use tea tree oil in your shampoo (add a few drops to the bottle of shampoo your children use) or dab some tea tree oil on your child's forehead and behind their ears before leaving the house. There are also shampoo bars available in our town, made with tea tree oil and lavender.

to contact any children (or their parents) that your child has come in contact with so that they too can check for nits and louse on their child. The quicker it is treated the less it multiplies! It should not be something that embarrasses anyone, lice loves all hair. I cannot stress this enough. I remember getting lice and being very embarrassed, at the time people thought lice only lived on dirty heads which really gave off a negative connotation. This is absolutely false

Myth busters

1. Lice are attracted to clean and dirty hair. At one time people believed that lice would live on dirty heads, not true. They will host on any head.

2. Louse do not hop, jump or fly. They are crawling insects. There is a very small chance that head lice will spread by sharing items such as combs, brushes, and hats.

3. You do not need to throw things out that can't be put in the washing machine, you can bag things and put them in the basement/garage/outdoor for two weeks to kill the lice.

4. Lice are rare: False. Lice are very common in school age children. We should be checking heads regularly even if we haven't received a note home.

5. There is no shame in getting lice. Lice love all heads and hair.

What to know about lice

1. There are three stages of lice, the egg (nit), nymph and adult louse.

The nit hatches in six to nine days and is found four to six mm from the scalp. If they are not that close they die.

The nymph is a small louse 1.5 mm diameter, they become adults seven days after hatching.

The adult louse multiplies like crazy. They can produce 10 eggs per day. It only takes 12-14 days for nits to reach adulthood.

If the louse is not treated they repeat the cycle every three weeks.

2. The main way head lice spread is from close, prolonged head-to-head contact. For example, when kids hug, are bent down playing a game together, are laying down reading stories together, etc.

3. Most common symptom of lice are itching on scalp near the back of the ears and neck.

4. We should be checking for lice regularly so that we can catch them before they multiply.

Here are some tips for checking your child's head:

Seat your child in a brightly lit room;

Part the hair;

Look for crawling lice and for nits on your child's scalp a section at a time;

Live lice are hard to find. They avoid light and move quickly;

Nits will look like small white or yellow-brown specks

Use a fine-tooth comb to help you search the scalp sec-

5. Treatment — There is the comb out method (which you can find information on how to do online) as well as lice medicine you can buy (at a pharmacy) to treat your child's head. If the treatment is used it should be repeated. If using the medicine it is a good idea to use the comb out method following the medicine to remove the nits and any louse that have survived.

6. How do you treat the rest of your house/things. All

"It came about from a group of printmakers, at the stone school, this group was all the intermediate class," explained Hinchley, who was the group's instructor. "We just decided last summer to put an exhibition together, an idea for the group show. Terrain became the idea."

"We just thought we should show what's inspired by what's important to us," Bridgeman explained. "Nature plays a really big part in a lot of people's work. We live in the country you know.'

Hinchley said that printmaking is a different experience than other mediums, because it often involves more collaboration than other types of art.

"A lot of times, people doing printmaking share ideas too, because there's the one press and you work in a group studio, so it's very collaborative in that way," he said. "It's a little different than someone who is doing drawing, they might be by themselves for hours and hours."

Rotary purchases bed kits for those in need

Caleb Nickerson, THE EQUITY

On Aug. 19, the Shawville Rotary Club made a donation of $1,050 to the charity Sleeping Children, represented by volunteer Jean Macnab. The money will purchase 30 bed kits for children in underdeveloped countries, which include a pillow, sleeping mat, sheet and mosquito net. The kits are assembled and distributed in the same country, and they are adapted to the region's specific needs. Sleeping Children currently works in countries like Bangladesh, Kenya and India, among many others. From left: Club secretary Marc Latreille, Macnab, treasurer Peter Haughton and President Sue Page.

THERE IS A LOT OF FALSE INFORMATION FLOATING AROUND' ABOUT CNL'S NSDF PROJECT.

HERE ARE THE FACTS.

For projects that are the size and scope of the Near Surface Disposal Facility (NSDF), it can be difficult to distinguish fact from fiction, so let's set the record straight.

WHY DO WE NEED THIS FACILITY? CNL has conducted remarkable work over the past 60 years, including the production of lifesaving medical isotopes, and the development of CANDU reactors which cleanly, safely and reliably produce more than half of Ontario's energy.

This work has also generated radioactive waste. While this waste was managed according to the best practices and regulations at the time, standards have changed. Some of this waste is now stored using outdated technology which in some cases has led to contamination.

CNL wants to do the responsible thing and clean up this waste and manage it

Any water that enters the facility during operation would be diverted to a wastewater treatment plant to remove contaminants.

WHAT WILL GO INTO THE NSDF?

The NSDF will only contain low-level radioactive waste such as soil from environmental clean-up work on the Chalk River site, demolition debris and general trash such as used personal protection clothing or equipment.

WHERE WOULD IT BE BUILT?

The proposed NSDF would be built at Chalk River Laboratories, where more than 90 per cent of the waste is already located. 14 locations were considered and judged according to size, access to utilities, flood risks, geotechnical issue. CNL's environmental monitoring program already conducts tens of thousands of tests each year, and will be expanded to monitor conditions around the new facility.

I'VE HEARD YOU RELEASE TRITIUM INTO THE RIVER. WHAT IS THIS?

Like all industries, CNL does have planned releases to the environment. This includes the controlled release of tritium, a radioactive isotope found naturally in the environment, including the air you breathe and the water you drink. Tritium can be harmful in high concentrations. CNL will only permit releases that are carefully controlled and well below regulatory limits, posing no threat.

with modern technology.

CNL is also in the process of revitalizing Chalk River Laboratories to create a world-class nuclear research centre. The NSDF is a key element in enabling that transformation, helping us to protect the environment and ensuring the responsible and safe disposal of low-level radioactive waste.

WHAT IS THE NSDF?

NSDF The is an engineered containment mound that will allow CNL to isolate low-level radioactive waste in a facility designed to keep this material separate from the environment and remove the present day risk. The waste will be isolated by a three metre thick multi-layer base liner and cover system that has been tested to last over 550 years, at which point the radioactivity will have decayed to levels you would find in the natural environment.

The chosen site is over one kilometre from the Ottawa River along a bedrock ridge that naturally forces water to flow in the opposite direction of the river. It is close to the Chalk River campus which has the required support services and in an area that has existing waste storage sites.

DOES THE LOCATION POSE A THREAT TO THE OTTAWA RIVER?

No, it does not. The NSDF is designed to protect the Ottawa River, not to harm it and in fact remove the present risk that exists from historical operations. While it's hard to imagine a scenario where contaminants would penetrate the facility's liner and not be handled by the waste water treatment system, it would still take an estimated seven years to travel through the ground and reach the Ottawa River, giving CNL ample time to detect and resolve the

WHAT ABOUT Α NATURAL DISASTER LIKE AN EARTHQUAKE OR A TORNADO?

The NSDF has been designed to withstand extreme weather and events such as earthquakes, tornadoes, forest fires, sabotage and major storms. The base of the facility is also located approximately 50 metres above the Ottawa River, much higher than any flood waters that might occur.

WHERE CAN I GET THE FACTS ABOUT THIS PROJECT?

The NSDF is subject to a federal government-led and very public, environmental assessment process. If you'd like to learn more about the project and the science which supports the decision-making, you can do so through this formal review process. Learn more at www.cnl.ca/NSDF.

Bonification importante du soutien financier

GOUV. DU QUÉBEC Communiqué GATINEAU Le 16 août 2019

Les organismes communautaires en santé et services sociaux de la région de l'Outaouais bénéficieront d'une hausse historique du financement qui leur est accordé. Le ministre de la Famille et ministre responsable de la région, Mathieu Lacombe, en a fait l'annonce au nom de la ministre de la Santé et des Services sociaux, Danielle McCann.

Ainsi, dès 2019-2020, le milieu communautaire de la région de l'Outaouais se voit octroyer une aide financière récurrente supplémentaire de près de 1,7 M$, qui vient s'ajouter au montant de près de 33 M$ déjà alloué dans le cadre du Programme de soutien aux organismes communautaires (PSOC).

S'appuyant sur les balises rehaussement permettra de répondre aux besoins priori-

« Le soutien aux personnes vulnérables de la communauté est un enjeu qui me touche particulièrement. Notre gouvernement est résolu à en faire davantage pour mieux soutenir les organismes communautaires qui sont engagés auprès de ces personnes. Le rehaussement important du financement du Programme de sou-tien aux organismes communautaires, du jamais vu, le démontre. Merci aux équipes dont le travail n'est rien de moins qu'exceptionnel. » Danielle McCann, ministre de la Santé et des Services sociaux.

Cet ajout historique de ressources financières est une reconnaissance de l'imvernement à la contribution des organismes communautaires en santé et services sociaux pour l'amélioration de la santé et du bien-être des personnes qui ont des besoins.

Enfin, soulignons que le PSOC, qui vise à soutenir PSOC respecte l'autonomie des organismes communautaires de définir leurs orientations, leurs politiques et leurs approches. Generous Old Bastards give to Bouffe, hospital foundation

Caleb Nickerson, THE EQUITY

On Friday, two members of the Old Bastards Vintage Motorcycle Club were in Shawville to make donations to two local causes, Bouffe Pontiac and the Pontiac Community Hospital Foundation, which received $313.28 each. Member Bill Costello explained that the funds they raise each year get divided evenly among a group of charities that they give to. Above left, from left: Old Bastard Leon Roy, Bouffe Pontiac employees Lee Boisvert and Kim Laroche and Costello pose for a picture. End of summer chicken dinner at St. Paul's Anglican

On Thursday evening, St. Paul's Anglican Church hall in Shawville was packed for their regular chicken barbeque. Organizer Carolyn Meisner said that they host two of the events a year and the funds go towards upkeep and general maintenance of the church. All the food is donated, and the preparation of the meal is organized by the AYWA.

Aug. 24, 2019 On August 24, the George Bryson House museum in Mansfield et Pontefract officially unveiled its very own escape room, which will be open to the public for the rest of the season.

Following the implementation of Café Robina earlier this summer, the museum's organizing committee was still searching for ways to attract more clientele to make the business more profitable, according to one of its guides, Alexie

Romain. So around a month ago, the museum's three summer student guides put forth the suggestion of creating an escape room, something that would hopefully the catch

Located in a small room in the upper portion of the building, the theme of the escape room consists of a trip back in time, where George Bryson plans to give his fortune to the person who manages to escape the locked room. "It's like the key to the past," she said.

Once they enter the room, participants will be given a letter from Bryson explaining a series of tests, which they have 45 minutes to complete in order to escape the room. For those seeking a more challenging
